TAMPA, Fla. Jan. 5, 2010 – AVI-SPL, the largest global integrator of audio visual and video conferencing systems and services today announced the addition of Rob Moss, CTS-D, as vice president of sales in educational technology.

Moss brings more than 20 years of experience in the AV market to AVI-SPL. Prior to joining AVI-SPL, Moss worked as general manager for clearVision networks, Inc. for the last seven years. During his time with clearVision, Moss and his team successfully created a suite of educational technology products that are being utilized in nearly 20 public school districts throughout the West.

“We are excited to have Rob join AVI-SPL,” said Stephenie Scanlon, president & chief sales and marketing officer. “With more than 20 years of experience in sales, marketing and management, he’ll help AVI-SPL to achieve national recognition as the source for classroom technology tools.”

“Educators are quickly realizing that classroom technology can be a powerful teaching tool,” said Moss. “Issues such as security and safety, ease-of-use and post-sales training are critical to ensure that educators are getting the most value from these tools. In my new position at AVI-SPL, I plan to focus on these core areas to continue the expansion of AVI-SPL’s market share in the K-12 education sector.”
