SPL Integrated Solutions Wins Twice in Annual ARCHI-TECH Magazine Best AV Projects Contest

Columbia, MD – June 27, 2006 — ARCHI-TECH magazine and InfoComm International® recently honored SPL Integrated Solutions, presenting them with two awards for their outstanding examples of the creative and effective integration of audiovisual technology.

SPL was the AV integrator for the grand prize winning project, the Lake of Dreams at the Wynn Resort and Casino in Las Vegas. The Lake of Dreams is an outside electronic performance venue that uses a 90 foot by 45 foot waterfall as a projection screen. This project was managed by Phil DiPaula and Ed Sullivan from the SPL Orlando office.

SPL was also the AV integrator for the award-winning project they completed for the Center for Disease Control Global Communication Center in Atlanta, GA, managed by Rick Landry in the Atlanta SPL office.

"It is an achievement and speaks to a firm's talents that SPL was chosen from so many outstanding audiovisual projects to receive two of just seven ARCHI-TECH AV Awards," said Jim Forthofer, Publisher of ARCHI-TECH.

Randal A. Lemke, Ph.D., executive director, InfoComm added, "These winning entries represent the pinnacle of design, functionality, and technological achievement."

"We are extremely proud to have been recognized for the outstanding work we did on these two projects and to be a winner for the third consecutive year," said Chad Gillenwater, president and CEO of SPL. "It shows that our engineers and technicians have the experience and expertise to successfully integrate and install the most challenging of AV projects."
